OBJECTS TO PAYING FINE.

Union Musician Files Suit to Enjoin His Organization.

In the Circuit Court yesterday Carl Froelich, a member of the Musician's Mutual Benefit Association, through his attorneys, Messrs. Kortjohn and Kortjohn, filed a bill against that organization, praying to have it enjoined from collecting a fine of $5 imposed for riding on transit cars or expelling him from the association for nonpayment of the fine. The Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association is a union labor organization and passed a resolution imposing a fine of $5 on any of its members riding on transit cars.

Froelich is a violoncellist and instructor of music. In going from place to place to give lessons he rode on transit cars. For this he was fined and notice was served on him that unless the fines were paid before August $, he would be expelled. To prevent this the suit for an injunction was filed.

Froelich avers in his bill of complaint filed a bill against that organization, pray-the air, with headlight blazing and body quivering under the intense pressure, the lost to the sight of the might and was some lost to the sight of the startled loungers at the station. News of the mysterious disappearance of engine No. 5 was sent along the wire to all the stations south of the Buris, even as far the stations south of the Buffs, even as far as Pacific Junction and beyond.

Hostler Van Wormer saw the iron monster pull out and hustled Master Mechanic Breidenstein out of bed, and the latter, with Engineer Lee, hastily mounted engine No. 1318 and tore away in pursuit. Passenger No. 22, C., B. & Q., was fifty-five minutes ahead of the missing engine, and with blanched faces the railroad men imagined which might be appeared to the control of the missing engine.

blanched faces the railroad men imagined what might happen if a crazy man were aboard and guiding the destiny of No. 5.

It was 2:30 in the morning when a wire came from Island Park, nine miles down the valley, saying that No. 5 was found "dead" about a mile south of town and had been run into the roundhouse.

Engineer Lee insists that a hobo had been tampering with the engine and took a ride down the road and turned it loose. The throttle was found slightly opened and the reverse lever was not exactly on the center. The theory of Mr. Breidenstein is that after the engine was watered and coaled and left the engine was watered and coaled and left standing on the track while the men ate their midnight lunch, the throttle sprung open sufficiently to admit steam enough to start it.

The engine was brought back and fired up

GARDEN PARTY FROCK.

Dainty Outdoor Dress for a Young Girl.

This attractive toilet is fashioned in pale blue and white crepe meteor, elaborately trimmed with white crepe de Chine. The bodice is mounted on a giove-fitted lining, which closes in the center back. It is faced to a round yoke depth with white thread lace and the crepe applied at the lower edge of the yoke. It is drawn down straight in the back with the fullness distributed in small plaits at the waist line. The fronts are slightly bloused. A soft Marie Antoinette fichu of crepe de Chine is draped to outline the yoke and fastens in front under a rosette. It is edged with a ruffle of the same fabric, which extends out over the close-fitting, two-plece elbow sleeve. The sleeve may be made full length if so desired and finished with a fall of lace at the hand or with the half sleeves, and a ruffle of the crepe de Chine at the elbows, as illustrated. The bodice is mounted on a giove-fitted of the crepe de Chine at the elbows, as illustrated.

The skirt is shaped with four pleces, a front gore, which is comparatively narrow, and wide side gores, which fit smooth over the hips, almost to the center back, where they meet the watteau. It is arranged to be perfectly flat at the waist line in a narrow double box plait, and widening toward the lower edge. The fullness falls in graceful folds, retaining the box-plaited effect.

The skirt is elaborately trimmed with three ruffles of crepe de Chine, surmounted by a full fold of the goods, which is caught at intervals with rosettes similar to those used at the back and front of the fichu. Feulard, India silk, drap d'ete, Louisine or Lansdowne are appropriate fabrics for this mode, with lace, velvet, ribbon, chiffon or mousseline de soie for trimming.
